Anatomy of the Al-Saud

The licence for this report covers up to five members of staff of the named primary licence holder – the specific entity named in the licence application or purchase. It does not extend to the staff of other departments and teams or to sub-contractors, or partner companies.

The primary licence holder has the right to distribute the report or product to any member of staff working within the departments covered by the licence, up to the agreed five user limit of the licence.

The licence holder and its staff are not allowed to share CbI's reports or products with individuals, companies, organisations or any other body external to the licence holder, without prior written permission from CbI. Such action constitutes a breach of copyright.

Extended licences

Need a report to be seen by more staff in other departments or teams?

Please contact subscriptions@cbi-publishing.com Tel: +44 (0)1424 721667

Standard subscriptions

Standard subscriptions are for up to two users within a company or organisation and include online and emailed content. Subscriptions are only for the use of the named users. Without the written permission of CbI, the named users are not permitted to share subscription resources with anyone via any means, including e-mail, printed copy or intranet.

If you would like to share CbI's subscription or other online resources with colleagues, please see below for more details or contact subscriptions@cbi-publishing.com Tel: +44 (0)1424 721667

Annual and half yearly subscriptions provide access to all the regular current and archived content for a particular publication and a fortnightly emailed PDF of published content. This does not include all special reports.

Additional users may be added to an annual subscription at a highly discounted rate.

Contact subscriptions@cbi-publishing.com for more details

Academic/not-for-profit sector subscriptions

CbI offers a special annual subscription package that allows academic institutions and NGOs to subscribe to African Energy or GSN and receive all the benefits of an unlimited user Internet licence at a fraction of the cost. The package includes institution-wide archive access, and the PDF version emailed to nominated staff and student email addresses. Orders may be placed by emailing subscriptions@cbi-publishing.com

CbI's general Internet licence terms (see below) apply.

Additionally, at the end of the subscription term the academic/not-for-profit subscriber has the right to maintain their own record of any issues published during the term of their subscription. Sharing of published content with other institutions is not permitted without prior written authorisation from CbI

Internet licences

CbI offers Internet licence subscriptions for both African Energy and GSN.

Internet licences start at a minimum of 10 users – 10 and 20 user licences may be bought through the CbI archive website shop.

For larger licences please contact subscriptions@cbi-publishing.com for a quote.

The minimum term of a licence is 12-months.

Once ordered a licence is non-refundable.

The licence covers only staff of the named licence holder – the specific entity named in the licence application or purchase. It does not extend to the staff of sub-contractors, or partner companies.

The licence fee is calculated on the number of anticipated users of a publication's current and archived resources not on total staff numbers of the licence holder. Please contact subscriptions@cbi-publishing.com (T: +44 (0)1424 721667) if you wish to extend access to all staff of your company or to staff beyond the maximum number of users permitted by your current subscription.

Access to a publication's archives is usually provided through the main IP address(es) of the licence holder and is limited to a number of concurrent users equal to the number of users covered by the licence

Should use of the licence regularly exceed the maximum agreed number of users, CbI will require the customer to upgrade their licence.

The licence holder has the right to nominate staff email addresses to receive in PDF, as soon as they are published, new full issues of publications covered by the licence .

The licence holder and its staff are not allowed to share CbI's publication resources with individuals, companies, organisations or any other body external to the licence holder, without prior written permission from CbI. Such action constitutes a breach of copyright.

The licence holder is responsible for informing the publisher of any change in IP addresses, email addresses or any other information necessary for the publisher to fulfil the terms of the subscription.
